Picture of Peace

There once was a king who offered a prize to the artist who would paint the best picture of peace. Many artists tried. The king looked at all the pictures. But there were only two he really liked, and he had to choose between them.

One picture was of a calm lake. The lake was a perfect mirror for peaceful towering mountains all around it. Overhead was a blue sky with fluffy white clouds. All who saw this picture thought that it was a perfect picture of peace.

The other picture had mountains, too. But these were ragged and bare. Above was an angry sky, from which rain fell and in which lightning played. Down the side of the mountain tumbled a foaming waterfall. This did not look peaceful at all.

But when the king looked closely he saw behind the waterfall a tiny bush growing in a crack in the rock. In the bush a mother bird had built her nest. There, in the midst of the rush of angry water, sat the mother bird on her nest—in perfect peace.

Which picture do you think won the prize? The king chose the second picture. Do you know why?

“Because,” explained the king, “peace does not mean to be in a place where there is no noise, trouble, or hard work. Peace means to be in the midst of all those things and still be calm in your heart. That is the real meaning of peace.” --Copied

Trash Day

Trash day is a funny thing. You certainly want it to come, but you likely dread the whole trash removal process—emptying the various household trash cans and attempting to make it all fit in the large outside receptacle that always seems to smell like death. A certain finesse is necessary to roll it to the curb while touching it as little as possible because, again, it’s a bunch of trash.

We may even feel a certain amount of embarrassment in rolling the trash to the end of the drive. Some do it late in the evening or early in the morning, hoping they won’t be seen. Why is that? Everyone has trash. What’s the big deal? The removal of trash from our homes is much like the confession of sins, and we’re often embarrassed by the sheer amount of it. Most of us cannot stand the smell of our own trash and can only assume that others would be completely grossed out by it too. However, if we were honest with one another, we would find that our trash is an awful lot alike. It’s more than one person can deal with alone. We could all use some help rolling our cans to the curb.

Like trash, sin needs to be dealt with on an ongoing basis. Letting it pile up and then desperately trying to remove it from our lives before the garbage truck pulls up is too overwhelming. Each day, we must examine our hearts to determine what needs to be discarded. After all, everyone has trash that needs to be dealt with, but nobody has to do it alone. --Copied

Act Medium

The children worked long and hard on their own little cardboard shack. It was to be a special spot—a clubhouse—where they could meet in solemn assembly or just laugh, play games, and fool around. As they thought long and hard about their rules, they came up with these rather perceptive ones: Nobody act big, nobody act small, everybody act medium. --Copied

While the Corona virus has occupied the media, we must not forget there are many who are suffering from tornados and hurricanes. Gal. 6:9-10—And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not. As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith.

The Disaster Assistance CoC team worked with local churches of Christ and provided 4,000 meals in North Carolina, 1,000 meals a day in Tennessee, and are providing 800-1,000 meals a day based out of the Chalmette Church of Christ. Chalmette is east of New Orleans.

We are sending $1,000 from our treasury to Disaster Assistance CoC. If you want to personally contribute, please give your check to one of the elders, Brian or Chris. Your check should be made out to the Farmerville Church of Christ.

The Elders of the Lake Jackson, Texas Church of Christ reviews all donations and expenses of this mission work. Thank you.

Reminder

If you like to sing, there is a group meeting together here at the building after the Sunday night worship service to practice old songs and learn new ones.
